Skyline Displays of Houston successfully completed the Skyline Installation and Dismantling Certification program, recognizing them as elite professionals in the industry.

March 1, 2011 (FPRC) -- HOUSTON, TX -- Skyline Displays of Houston has announced that they have earned certified status to install and dismantle Houston trade show displays and exhibits. Skyline Houston has been recognized by their clients for outstanding service for years, however completing the certification program was a way for the Houston team to sharpen their skills and tighten their existing systems and procedures.

The Houston Service Team has successfully completed the three phase certification process that puts all Skyline Installation and Dismantle teams through a rigorous course covering industry best practices, how to provide effective customer relations, standard operating procedures, and effective pre- and post-show follow up. The official certification allows clients to feel secure that they are receiving the best service available, and that the service will be consistent for trade show displays in Houston and the surrounding Gulf Coast area as well as Nationwide.

"I am proud of our service team for the commitment to do what is necessary to maintain the high level of care we give to our clients. It is that same level of commitment our entire team shares to produce a flawless experience for our clients. The I&D Certification and the effort needed to acquire it is simply further proof of that commitment," says Craig Koopersmith, President of Skyline Displays of Houston. "Our clients see us as the experts and we want to do everything we can to continue to earn that trust."

Following certification, teams maintain their certification through on-going training and assessments, along with updates on new releases within the industry. Using a certified Skyline Installation and Dismantle team ensures that exhibits will be properly cared for while being set up and taken down adding to the life of the exhibit.

"It gives our client's peace of mind knowing that our team will do whatever it takes to take care of their needs. This is the same attitude we carry throughout our International Network. Our clients know they do not have to worry about their exhibit, so they are free to focus their energy on their goals for the event," concluded Koopersmith.
