Blockhouse TV have announced the release date for their new animated learning DVD; Jack and Holly's Cosmic Stories

November 18, 2011 (FPRC) -- Blockhouse TV announces the release date of the second DVD title in the Jack and Holly series.

The second DVD which is called Jack and Holly's Cosmic Stories features the intergalactic capers of best friends Jack and Holly as they dispel some of the myths surrounding the cosmos and educate first stage learners about the complexities of the universe.

This second film follows the familiar animated style of Jack and Holly's Christmas Countdown - once again using their distinctive machinima and mixed-media animation techniques.

Julianne Martin, executive producer of the series says 'we're sure that children everywhere will be delighted with the new adventures of Jack and Holly and that this DVD will form an integral mile-stone in the Jack and Holly series. It took just over 18 months to complete and once again parents and teachers were involved in the production throughout - guiding us as to what they felt was appropriate and best for first stage learning'

Blockhouse TV is renowned for taking on the big studio productions with their low-budget but high quality children's productions. 'we're a tiny team with a fraction of the Hollywood big studios budget' says Julianne 'but we're delivering the sort of original content parents are looking for. Children's screen time has never been more contentious -that's why we believe ALL children's media should aspire to the highest educative standards'.

Jack and Holly's Cosmic Stories is released on December 1st 2011.

Available through Amazon as an all-regions DVD release (PAL & NTSC) and Video Download. (customers are able to download FREE workbooks and comics to accompany the paid-for videos)
