

Packages Launched for New Homes in Scotland

Offers to help buyers buy properties are being launched at a major development in Scotland.

March 4, 2013 (FPRC) -- Offers to help buyers buy properties are being launched at a major development in Scotland. The development is called The Strada and is located in North Fettes in Edinburgh. The development consists of a mixture of one, two, three and four bedrooms homes including apartments, flats and penthouses. The new homes in Scotland are within easy reach of Edinburgh city centre.

For buyers who want to purchase a new home there is a shared equity house buying scheme that is available on selected plots. The equity scheme offers ownership of up to 75 per cent of the property which makes it more affordable for first time buyers who want to get onto the property ladder, with prices starting from £105,000. There is no interest that is charged for the first ten years of the agreement on the outstanding balance loan.

There is also additional help with a buyer starter pack that is being offered to house buyers on new homes for sale to help them reduce their costs when buying furniture and necessities for their home. The buyer pack includes integrated kitchen appliances and free carpets. A furniture pack is also offered for every room in the home including beds, tables and cutlery. The pack will offer greater value for money for cash-strapped house buyers.

The new homes in Scotland are being offered to the market jointly by Taylor Wimpey and Bett Homes.

The development is close to main routes into Edinburgh and also offers a wealth of shopping, leisure and entertainment facilities that are close by. Rugby, football and golf clubs are all within easy access.

The development also offers access to cycling routes and a shoreline to the north.
