November 19, 2013 (FPRC) -- Giuliano is a singer/song writer/solo guitarist from Los Angeles, CA. His his latest single 'Infecting My Mind', was produced by legendary music producer Jim Wirt, who has produced artists such as Fiona Apple, Incubus, No Doubt, and Jack Mannequin. Giuliano has the sound of modern Rock with the integrity of classic Rock.

'Infecting My Mind' is written and preformed by Giuliano. Legendary music producer, Jim Wirt, who produced artists such as Fiona Apple, Incubus, No Doubt, Dive, Live, Jacks Mannequin, Gabriel The Marine, Alien Ant Farm, Hoobastank, Various, Something Corporate, and Elliot Minor, was thrilled to work with this up and coming young artist.

Giuliano started on his musical path before he even knew he was to become a talented solo artist. In 1994, Giuliano came into the world, home birthed right above the famous Whiskey A Go Go, in West Hollywood, CA. His love for classic rock started very young, with influences by The Doors, John Lennon, Metallica, and Pink Floyd. His family always thought and would kid around with the idea, that maybe being born above such a infamous place inspired this young soul to take flight in his music career.

After Giuliano wrote and performed his first single 'Never Forget', that was inspired by the one year anniversary of the Japanese tsunami that was on YouTube, Giuliano was approached by music producer Jim Wirt and his partner Claire Wirt. They both saw something in this artist that spoke to their hearts. Six months later after Giuliano graduated from Beverly Hills High School, he flew out to Cleveland, Ohio to work with Jim at his studio to start on his EP.

Giuliano's latest single, Infecting My Mind has garnished the attention of notable music producers, composers and is gaining loving supportive fans. His music video recently went live on his Vevo Channel and YouTube. Stay tuned for more to come by Giuliano.
