

Fellowship Home Loans Launches Revamped Website Dedicated to Mortgage Education

Fostering successful home ownership comes from providing information, advice and alternatives, fellowshiphomeloans.com

Jericho, NY -- February 1, 2016 (FPRC) -- Figures recently released by the financial sector reveal an estimated 50 percent of America's mortgage loan applications are denied by traditional lending institutions due in large part to more stringent regulations sparked by the housing market crash of 2008. Though the nation has made significant strides toward recovery in recent years, industry officials remain reluctant to loosen their grip on eligibility standards in the interest of preventing a repeat of past events. With those spurned by conventional lenders in mind, Brian Schiele, co-founder of Fellowship Home Loans, has launched the Christian Mortgage Lending firm's newly revamped website.

Said Schiele, "We've been in the Christian Home Loan business for more than ten years, so we've seen the real estate industry at its highest and lowest points. We're also well aware of how a buyer's market can turn into a seller's market seemingly in the blink of an eye. Hopeful home buyers face a lot of hurdles when they're looking for a house and applying for a mortgage, but our purpose is to help make the process as smooth and stress free as possible. Many of our efforts focus on providing education about buying a home as well as the loans we offer, and our new website is designed to carry on that tradition."

The newly redesigned Fellowship Home Loans website offers in-depth information pertaining to a number of aspects of the mortgage application process, such as pre-application preparation and the factors taken into account when determining eligibility. Explanations of the different loans available are additionally provided. Blog posts updated on a monthly basis discuss a range of industry-related topics along with the company's signature approach to lending.

Schiele and co-founder Mike Rakeman have conducted a number of community outreach efforts leading up to the recent website overhaul. Among these is the team's Church of the Month drawing in which one church is chosen at random each month to receive cash prizes and mortgage counseling for the both the church as a whole and its entrant. They also extend the benefits of their industry experience to others via their radio shows, which can be accessed on the company website.

Concluded Schiele, "It's a blessing to be able to assist thousands of homeowners and offer services to help our communities thrive. Our team is able to provide the conventional standard and fixed-rate loan options, FHA and VA Home Loans, as well as a number of other alternatives. We believe the key is giving clients as many alternatives as possible and helping them choose the one best suited to their individual needs. This website update is just the latest step in our efforts to give back to the community, and we will continue to add new features as the need arises."
