For an outdoors person there's few purchases as important as a camping tent. No one wants to make a bad call & end up paying too much for a low quality, unreliable choice. Fortunately, the new website What Camping Tent has recently announced their launch. Cleveland OH, United States of America - February 15, 2016 /PressCable/ --

There's no doubt purchasing a camping tent can be something of a tough choice. Not only are there many to choose from at all price points and quality levels, but there's also the factor that many shoppers don't have deep experience with or knowledge of the subject. Finding a solution to this problem recently became much easier, with the recent launch of What Camping Tent. What Camping Tent is a new camping tent review site recently launched by outdoor enthusiasts, with a mission of making shopping for a tent much simpler and more satisfying than ever. Visitors to the new site have responded with enthusiasm.

"Something I like to do most is sit back and take in mother nature," commented a spokesperson from the company. "To look at the birds, listen to their singing, go trekking, camping, hiking and running, walking along the lake, playing games and sometimes being alone with the great outdoors. It's very special to me. Doing all these things my companion has usually been a wonderful camping tent. After some friends shared their less than perfect experiences shopping for tents, I thought I'd share my experience and insight to save others from that same problem. And that's when What Camping Tent was born."

According to What Camping Tent, they cover all of the most popular styles of camping tents. Some highlights include: backpacking tents, very cool camping tents, family sized tents, and tents designed for couples or friends to enjoy in the outdoors. All of the major brands like Coleman, MSR and Ozark Trail are featured and the reviews make every effort to be as detailed as possible when covering 2016 camping tents.

The What Camping Tent website also features very informative blog posts, which have a focus on delivering valuable, actionable information. Recent posts have covered things like, "The Most Comfortable Camping Tents"; "a complete review of Coleman tents"; "The Best Family Tent to Consider" and much more.

Early reviews for the new camping site have been very positive across the board.

Brian S., from Maine, recently said in a five-star review, "Our family loves the outdoors and that means we do a huge amount of camping. We were on the hunt for a new tent and the What Camping Tent review site was really a great help. Without the site we were just flying blind and having to rely on information that was questionable at best. Once we were able to check out some honest reviews, we found what we needed, ordered and even saved money when it was all said and done. Fully recommended."
