

Thermalabs Launches Its Samana Art Professional Airbrush Set Kit

Thermalabs has released its Samana Art Professional Airbrush Set Kit.

November 3, 2016 (FPRC) -- Cosmetics manufacturer Thermalabs has just launched its Samana Art professional airbrush set kit. The Samana is an advanced system that's designed to address all a user's airbrushing system. This is the 16th product that the American company has introduced into the market this year, making 2016 perhaps the busiest year for its research and development department.

Thermalabs is a US-based cosmetics maker that runs various production facilities in other parts of the world. Thermalabs main factory is located in Galilee, Israel. The company opened its doors in 2013, starting out as a non-profit organization that created awareness on skin cancer and other serious ailments. Thermalabs first product was launched towards the end of 2013, after the then startup enlisted investors and apparently gathered enough funds to kickstart a production operation. The firm has today furnished the global cosmetics market with at least 30 different products. Most of the company's releases are premium tanning lotions and tanning accessories.

The cosmetics space is usually characterized by stiff competition and big-brand dominance. But Thermalabs has somewhat been able to withstand the barriers to entry and establish a foothold in the market. Based on critic observations, the firm's focus on organic and natural ingredients can be said to be one of its strongest points.

According to Thermalabs, its new product is equipped with a 3-speed turbine and heated air function to make it easier for users to apply self-tanners. The set can be operated at the click of a button. It works quietly and is lightweight for travel purposes. The company has also said that it'll be offering technical assistance and a 100% money back guarantee on this system. Samana Art professional airbrush set kit will now compete with similar products from renowned brands such as Master Airbrush, Paasche Airbrush, and PointZero Airbrush.

Alex Howard, Thermalabs coordinator in charge of marketing and product launches, said, "Thermalabs has launched yet another new product in a busy production year. The Samana Art professional airbrush set kit is the 16th product to be introduced by the company this year. This will be a comprehensive set that will make it easier for our customers to spray-tan. The system has been designed with a one click button for easier operation. It leverages a 3-speed turbine guide, as well as heated air for a fluid operation. Our Samana Art professional airbrush system is a superior product that was particularly designed to address rampant user needs. It can be used with any of Thermalabs spray tan tents, as well as spray tan tents from any other brands. Customers can now get a look at precise details of this system on Amazon.com. Stay tuned to Thermalabs."
