

Thermalabs has Launched its Pink Comprehensive Airbrush Makeup Spray Gun

Thermalabs has just introduced its pink, airbrush makeup spray gun set.

November 3, 2016 (FPRC) -- Cosmetics firm Thermalabs has released its pink comprehensive airbrush makeup spray gun. This is an advanced spray tanning system that's equipped with a heated air function, as well as a 3-speed turbine for effortless operation. The product operates quietly and is lightweight for travel convenience. According to Thermalabs, this system will ship with an in-depth printed beginners guide, a high-fashion cosmetics carrying bag, and its patented finger-bound exfoliator.

Thermalabs is an emerging player in the global cosmetics niche. The company manufactures an assortment of products for this industry, including self-tanners, tanning accessories, beach-related products and skin health aids. Despite being just 3 years old in the industry, Thermalabs has furnished the market with over 30 different products and gathered a significant global following. According to industry critics, Thermalabs focus on organic and natural ingredients can be seen as one of its strongest marketing points.

This is not the first airbrush system that the company has introduced. In recent weeks, the firm has launched its comprehensive makeup system for makeup, nail art, and tattoos. In all its airbrush systems, makeup is sprayed onto the skin, as opposed to using a sponge or any other applicator. The systems compress the makeup and disperse it as very fine mist. Millions of tiny makeup dots are layered on the skin, creating an even application on the skin. The advantage of this methodology, which is becoming increasingly popular in the cosmetics space, is that it makes makeup barely noticeable.

Thermalabs has said that its pink comprehensive airbrush makeup spray gun is designed to achieve a flawless, natural complexion. It works with body paint, nail art, or any other form of airbrushing, which means it's flexible.

With this system, the company will compete with other brands such as Master Airbrush, Art of Air, Bellocchio Brand, and Point Zero. Since these have already established themselves in the airbrush system market, it'll be interesting to see what approach Thermalabs uses to take on these brands. There's increased interest in airbrush systems in the market, as more beauty enthusiasts realized the benefits of spray tanning and makeup application.

"Thermalabs has today released yet another comprehensive tan and makeup system. Our pink makeup spray gun compressor set is a superb way for our customers to apply self-tanners, nail art, body paint and any other compatible form of makeup. This product features an easy one-click button, as well as heated air for a smooth operation. It ships with a high-fashion carry bag, and our patented finger exfoliating device that covers small detail areas. Customers can now take a look at product images and descriptions on Amazon.com," Alex Howard, a marketing coordinator at Thermalabs, said during the launch of the new system.

Contact Information

For more information contact Alex Howard of Thermalabs (<http://www.thermalabs.com/>)

(877) 266-6257

Keywords

airbrush makeup spray gun

The company

new system

You can read this press release online here